A MESSAGE FROM THE SENIOR PRESIDENT

The Senior Class has reached the final stage in its high school career. We came to Tubman in 1937, determined to be good students and to leave behind us good records; we wanted the Class of 1941 to be remembered as a class that had taken advantage of the opportunities that Tubman offered. In part, we have succeeded; for certainly we have worked hard here, and we have the memory of four happy years—rich in achievement and in friendship.

There is always regret when one leaves the known to launch out into the unknown. Our class has that regret, and we have fear and dread as well; for we are going out into the world of upheaval. All of the values that our forefathers loved, fought for, and bequeathed to us are being challenged.

KATHERINE ANNE EDELBLUT

There is a personal challenge for each one of us. We must not look back over the years that led up to this turmoil—except to seek causes; we must look forward, and we must see to it that we do not in turn leave a troubled world for those who are to come after us. We must not allow the future to drag us along; we must reach into the future and find there the means of building a secure world.

Years from now, we will read these words again. We will not read them with longing for the things that we have not accomplished; we will read them with regret that we could not know in 1941 all the richness and promise that life held for us.

SENIOR CLASS POEM

O'er half the earth Confusion holds her sway
Midst pain and strife, we stand on the threshold
Of a dubious world—beyond the sheltered fold
Of carefree youth. Each dreamy, studious day
Has fitted us to take the unknown way,
The untried path. What does this journey hold?
What trials will prove our actual mold?
Will our young hands still Freedom's sweet song play?
From bondage free, we'll ever keep our land,
A citadel of laughter without fears!
Our challenge this, accept it now we must!
In a world of doubt, securely we will stand
Then Peace and Promise for a thousand years
Still is our heritage—our golden trust!

MARCIA McCATHERN, '41.

MAIDS AND A MAN got under way when Mr. Garrett appointed as our faculty adviser, Miss Ruth McAuliffe, who, in turn, chose her faculty assistants. The faculty advisers selected the staff. The sale of annuals was launched with a chapel program at which skits from former Maids and a Man were read. Long months were spent in getting ads, pictures, snaps, literary contributions, and sketches. Now that the annual is completed, we have decided to enter it in the nation-wide contest for rating annuals.

ASSOCIATION

The purpose of the Tubman Athletic Association is to promote intramural activities and to instill a spirit of fair play in the minds of the girls.

Each year points are given for scholarship, athletic ability, and participation in school activities, and emblems and awards are given by the Athletic Association to the girls qualifying for them. There is also a medal for the winner of the tennis tournament in the spring. Probably the most coveted distinction of all is the cup given to the senior who, in her four years at Tubman, has proved herself to be a well rounded student.

This year the juniors played the seniors for the volleyball championship. The juniors won but the seniors had already challenged the faculty to an exhibition game. Contrary to custom, an admission of five cents was charged and the proceeds of the game went to the annual staff. To the surprise of all, the faculty team—though they lost the first—won the last two games to become the winners for the first time in history. No doubt it was largely due to the fact that Miss Ann Braddy made them practice more than other faculty teams had done in the past.

The seniors lacked quantity if not quality on their basketball team. Against the freshman six, the seniors had four players, two guards and two forwards. It was only with an extra two minutes to break the tie that the seniors could win. However, the juniors were too much for this sort of team so they easily won the tournament.

The juniors won the ring tennis tournament by winning all three games that they played.

For the first time in three years the Athletic Association put on a gym exhibition. Much time, effort, and cooperation was manifested by the girls.

The ring tennis championship went to the Sophomore team.

Volleyball also went to the Juniors.

Make yourselves at home, girls.

You may inform the young ladies that I have arrived.

The Dramatic Club chose JESSICA'S JOURNEY, a farce-comedy by Edwin Scribner, for its production this year. Six school girls (Frances Wooddall, Sydney Sanders, Mary Burke Hatcher, Nancy Hardy, Bertha Lee, and Mary Cleckley) board the train for Washington (see cut); however, they end by playing maid to the Foster Sisters (Katherine Anne Edelblut and Sally Martin) who live in a magnificent old home which they are about to lose. It all happened because Miss Dorcas (Margaret Grammer) who is in charge of the girls is an old friend of the Fosters. Aunt Charity Foster (Patience Middleton) arrives from Florida just in time to save the girls from selling their home to Mrs. Eggleston (Cynthia Sheftall) who wants it in time for her daughter's (Leah Rose Glasser) birthday party.

Kind of put it over on you, didn't they, Mama..

The Tubman Observer draws its staff from all the classes of Tubman.

In December of this year, Louise Knapp and Virginia Jameson organized our staff. Then we sponsored a contest in order to get a name for the paper. This was won by Barbara Ann Collier, a sophomore. During this year we have published four issues, and in these we have endeavored to present all phases of Tubman activities to the girls. Of all the interesting articles our journal contained, perhaps the two most popular were the social column and the fashion notes.

It is the aim of the Tubman Observer to stimulate an interest in all types of journalism.

The Camera Club is one of the newest clubs at Tubman, having been organized in the fall of 1940 for the purpose of giving the girls who are interested in photography a chance to learn more about it. There are facilities for developing and printing pictures in the chemistry lab. During the year, the members of the club have gone on several expeditions to get outdoor shots, and they have enjoyed seeing some colored movies.

The Girl Reserves start the year with a membership tea. The enthusiasm is high as three clubs are organized—a freshman group, a West End group, and a group for upper classmen.

At the weekly meetings, invited speakers bring ideas on world affairs, Friendship, Personality, Etiquette, or the members engage in general discussion. The girls take time for handicraft, camping trips, and many stimulating and enjoyable activities.

The high light of the year is the banquet with its Mexican theme, colorful decorations, and gay senoritas in bright costumes. Guests for the occasion are juniors who have averaged ninety in Spanish for the year.

The Spanish Club, under the leadership of Miss Miller for the past ten years, has done some very interesting work.

The Tubman Chapter of the National Honor Society was organized in the spring of 1940.

Membership is based on qualities of leadership, scholarship, character, and service. Members must obtain a scholastic average of eighty-five in every subject during each year. Only Juniors and Seniors are eligible for active membership.

Membership in the National Honor Society of Secondary Schools is a signal honor as it rates for high schools as Phi Beta Kappa does for college.

The AENEID

BOOK II, 250-259

Dark night steals from o'er the deep
Overcoming all with soothing sleep.
Did I say all? Ah, yet, harken!
The clouds descend; the heavens darken.
Sinon, well versed in Grecian wiles,
Signals the Greeks on yonder isles;
Then they set out for the opposite shore.
'Neath a silent moon and with muffled oar.
All Troy sleeps after mirth and wine!
They make for the shore in unbroken line;
They make for the shore and disembark
Within the walls and in the dark.
Sinon opens the horse of pine;
The Greeks file forth; they form a line;
They slay the guards and unbar the gates
As was predestined by the Fates.
Then those without and those within
Ravage the city with unearthly din.
Of what befell Troy on that fateful day
You may read in Vergil's immortal lay.

Nell Meese '41.

The AENEID

BOOK II, 105-119

The ardent crowd was eager then to hear
Searching answers, they anxiously drew near
Awaiting reasons, silent every man.
Aeneas, thus, from his high couch began:
"Then truly did we explanations seek,
Still ignorant of the double dealing Greek.
Sinon trembled as he told this story,
'The Greeks have often wished to flee from Troy
Wearied with war, they long have yearned to part,
But bitter storms as oft delayed their start.
South winds kept them in terror of the sea
For the maple horse was where it ought to be.
Dark clouds thundered, the sun refused to shine.
In haste we sent Eurypylus to Phoebus' shrine.
From Phoebus' shrine this oracle he brought:
(Our messenger gave utterance to our thought)
When first in Troy you fled the angry flood
You did appease the winds with a maiden's blood
Again by blood, if to embark you reck,
You can allay the waves. It must be by the blood of a Greek!" "

A Swallow Flying

I saw a swallow flying
Against the autumn Sky,
And, oh, what joy there is to see
A swallow winging by.

It spread its wings into the wind
So swift my eye soon lost its trace,
And, oh, what joy there was to watch
It vanishing in space!

I wish my heart were like that bird
That it might go a-winging
Alone into a world of mine
And there be ever singing!

Endlessly blending
Hides the earth with a silvery mound.

The Ballad of The Faculty-Senior Game

A stranger chanced to pass one day
By the gates of Tubman High
When there arose within those walls
A mighty hue and cry.

The very walls did seem to shake
And tremble in his sight.
The stranger then drew nigh a bit
To see what caused this plight.

He saw the roof begin to rise
From such an awful din.
The stranger then drew nearer still
To learn what was within.

Now in there rushed two lusty teams
Of bounding lassies gay?"
The stranger asked a girl near-by
"Why such a gala day?"

"Why don't you know, you poor dumb thing!
To-day they play the game
Faculty versus Senior Class
To do or die their aim.

"Miss Braddy there, the tiny one,
Is captain of our teachers."
And when he saw the one described
A smile broke o'er his features.

Seniors led by Skyscraper Hurst
Advance into their places.
The teachers view their stalwart foes
That sight their smiles erases.

"What makes the welkin now to ring
With echoes loud and shrill."
"Those shorts on Remington Rogers
Just gave the girls a thrill."

That shadow with such potent strength
Is Julius Caesar's ghost
That's why McAuliffe meets so well
The charging senior host.

At length the teachers make a point
While Boatwright leads the yelling!
Three cheers for Rookie Bearden!
Hurrah for Oxygen Stelling!

"What makes the rafters so resound
With such an awful roar."
"That's only Loudspeaker von Kamp
She's piling up the score."

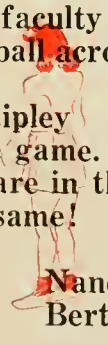

Chick Evans follows Catch Carswell
They both have manful swings.
And Jumper Jones bounds all about
As if controlled by strings.

And now the game is near the end
You bet the seniors shine!
But see who's coming up to serve;
It's Backstop Brisendine!

"What makes the building so to quake
And tremble more and more?"
"Why, that's only Tiptoe Lombard
As she trips across the floor."

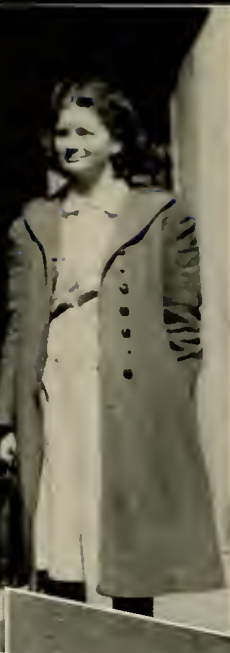

The time has come to end the fight
Up comes Bunker Hill Strauss;
She scores a point for faculty
When she swats the ball across.

Believe it or not for Ripley
The faculty won the game.
And now their heads are in the clouds;
They'll never be the same!

The LAST WILL

DATED MAY 29, 1941

We, the Senior Class of Tubman High School, being of sound and disposing mind; and, yet, being feeble in body and realizing that our days are numbered, do make, declare, and publish this our last will and testament in manner and form following:

Item, We will bequeath our seats in chapel, our Kid Day dresses, and our fondest ambitions to the Senior Class of 1942.

Item, We do will and bequeath to the Faculty a placard with the inscription: Marriage Rules Unfair to Faculty. We hope that the Faculty will form relays and march up and down the halls picketing the married seniors.

Item, We will and bequeath to Miss McAuliffe and to Miss Jones one camera that will take clear shots and one senior who can operate it.

Item, We will and bequeath to Miss Halbert one Senior Chorus composed of the proper number of sopranos and altos.

Item, We will and bequeath to Miss Boatwright, Mildred Mills' northern accent and to Miss Comey, Maude Gary's southern drawl. We hope that between them they will evolve a universal accent.

Item, We do will and bequeath Frankie Kirkland's place as assistant in Chemistry Lab to Mary Ann Daniels, hoping that Mary Ann will not mind having her hands discolored with silver nitrate.

Item, We will to Betty Dicks, Joan Davidson's friendly smile.

Item, We will and bequeath Mac Christian's ability to organize to Jeanne Culpepper.

Item, We do will and bequeath the seats in the lunch room now in possession of Roseann Hallman, Shirley Blum, and Jewel Fox to Billie Hallman, Sally Plane, and Hilda Popkin.

Item, We will and bequeath Katherine Anne Edelblut's speed in translating Latin to Patience Middleton, hoping that Patience will use it as effectively as Katherine Anne did.

Item, We do will and bequeath Carolyn Michel's own way of saying "Hello" to the Freshman B's.

Item, We will and bequeath to Mildred Teuton, Bobbie Barrentine's ability to trim Snickers to the last peanut.

and TESTAMENT of the Senior Class

WITNESSED HEREBY AT AUGUSTA, GEORGIA

Item, We will and bequeath Elizabeth Hurst's only compact to Anne Kelly, hoping that Anne will find more use for it than Elizabeth did.

Item, We will and bequeath Louise Torpin's gentle manner to Marguerite Toole, hoping that Marguerite will use it in class.

Item, We will and bequeath Sally Martin's ability to get ads from hardened business men to Bertha Lee.

Item, We will and bequeath Susan Morris' friendly nature to her little sister Dafoe.

Item, We will and bequeath Dorothy Gray's ability to make herself heard to her little sister Louise.

Item, We will and bequeath to Nancy Hardy the task of leading her class to victory against the Faculty in volley ball.

Item, We will and bequeath to Mary Cluckley, Cynthia Sheftall's column in the newspaper, hoping that Mary will make it as interesting as Cynthia has.

Item, We will and bequeath Roberta Broadwater's love of study to Joanne von Sprecken.

Item, We will and bequeath Marcia McCathern's front desk in Vergil class to Gloria Hamilton, hoping that Gloria will not be distracted by the cars outside the window.

Item, We do will and bequeath to Miss Rogers one play suit, hoping that it will remind her of Kid Day.

Item, We do request that our report cards be buried with us.

We do appoint the Faculty to be our executors, and do revoke all former wills, and publish this to be our last will and testament. In witness whereof, we hereunto put our hands on the day and the year above written.
